We serve our Red Wines at proper Cellar temperature, about 60 degrees, as opposed to room temperature which is common in most local restaurants, because at 60 degrees or so, the fruit comes to the forefront in harmony with the tannins. Red Wines served too warm appear to be alcoholic and dull. To expedite service, wines by the bottle are opened to order at the bar. A Split is approximately 6 1/2 oz. A 1/2 bottle yields 2 glasses on the average, rather than the usual 4 glass yield from a bottle.
